Instructions for the Annotation Task (Click to expand)

To begin the annotation, please follow the instructions below.

- You will see a ChatGPT prompt–response pair.
- Read every sentence in the Prompt first, then read every sentence in the Response.
- To annotate personal information (see "Personal Information Examples" for definition):
  - Highlight the relevant word or phrase that constitutes personal information.
  - Press the corresponding keys for the correct personal information category.(see "Key Instruction" for more details).
    - Press "e" to annotate the highlighted text as "explicit".
    - Press "i" to annotate the highlighted text as "implicit".
    - Press "s" to annotate the highlighted text as "suggested".
    - Press "t" to annotate the highlighted text as "third-party".
  - In the "Type of personal information:" text box, enter the appropriate information type (see "Personal Information Examples").
- Continue annotating all instances of personal information in both Prompt and the Response.
- The "History of annotated personal information types:" list will fill automatically as you annotate.
- When you have finished annotating both the prompt and the response, click Submit Task.
- No annotations?
  - If the prompt contains no personal information to annotate, tick the checkbox "The prompt does not contain any information to annotate."
  - If the response contains no personal information to annotate, tick the checkbox "The response does not contain any information to annotate."

NOTE: Do not overlap annotations. If you need to annotate an instance that is contained within another instance you want to annotate, annotate the longer instance first to avoid duplication.

Personal Information Examples (Click to expand)

Personal information is defined as any information relating to an identified or identifiable natural person, also known as a "data subject". This means it encompasses any information that, on its own or when combined with other data, can be used to identify a specific individual.

Here are some examples of the personal information you might see in the prompt-response pair. Each personal information instance can belong to a specific category. Additional examples of personal information instances and categories are provided below:

- Maria T. Alvarez: Name
- king.khan2000@gmail.com: Email address
- 27 years old: Age
- Houston, Texas: Location
- 1600 Pennsylvania Ave NW, Washington, DC 20500: Address
- B.Sc. Electrical Engineering: Degree
- Software Engineer at Google: Occupation
- Annual salary $85000: Income
- Bank account No. 987654321 (Wells Fargo): Bank account information
- Visa card ending 4432: Financial card information

- Hispanic: Ethnic origin
- Registered Democrat: Political opinions
- Muslim: Religion

Key Instruction (Click to expand)

There are four personal information categories you'll encounter: explicit, implicit, and suggested. Each category has its own keyboard shortcut (key). The definitions, shortcuts, and examples are below.

Explicit

Explicit category refers to personal information that is stated directly in the text. To annotate, highlight the personal information instance and press "e".
For example: In sentence "The rent amount is $1200 per month.", the highlighted phrase is "explicit" category. Its personal information type is "rent amount per month".

Implicit

Implicit category refers to personal infromation not stated outright but inferable from context. To annotate, highlight the personal information instance and press "i".
For example: In sentence "The rent amount is $1200 per month.", the highlighted word reveals the person's living situation (renting vs owning). "rent" is therefore an "implicit" category. Its personal information type is "living situation".

Suggested

Suggested category refers to personal information (explicit or implicit) that ChatGPT recommends or suggests in its response. To annotate, highlight the personal information instance and press "s".
For example: In sentence "For a memorable dinner, you might like Odd Duck or Lenoir - they are both well-known.", the highlighted words are "suggested" categories. Their personal information type are "activity location" for both.

Third-party

Third-party category refers to personal information (explicit) of any natural or legal person, public authority, agency, or body other than the data subject, controller, or processor, and those acting under their direct authority. Essentially, it's anyone who isn't directly involved in the core processing of personal data but might still have a role or access to it. To annotate, highlight the personal information instance and press "t".
For example: In sentence "My nephew Cam is 19-years-old.", the highlighted words are "third-party" categories. Their personal information type are "name" and "age" respectively.

PROMPT

My employer is using my military history against me to prove a point about workplace violence and that I could pose a risk to my coworkers. Please reference USERRA and EEO in the email. Reference that I have been honorably discharge and that I have been awarded more than 10 medals for my military service. Also reference that my job description as an Infantryman was endorsed and appointed by the US Government. Reference that because of my services, I am now 90% disabled according to the VA and that this has resulted in permanent disability that has affected my ability to live at full capacity like those who have had the privilege of not needing to serve because of my sacrifices made to this country. Reference that I have lost confidence in my management and HR Employee Relations department because of this discrimination.

RESPONSE

Subject: Formal Complaint of Workplace Discrimination and Violation of USERRA and EEO Rights Dear [HR Employee Relations], I am writing to bring to your attention a serious matter of workplace discrimination that I have experienced, which directly violates my rights under the Uniformed Services Employment and Reemployment Rights Act (USERRA) and Equal Employment Opportunity (EEO) laws. It is with deep concern and disappointment that I must address this issue. As an employee who has honorably served our country in the military and has been awarded numerous medals for my service, I am proud of my contributions to our nation's defense. However, I am distressed to report that my military history has been unfairly used against me by [employer] in a manner that suggests I may pose a risk of workplace violence to my coworkers. I want to emphasize that I have been honorably discharged from the military and my service as an Infantryman was not only endorsed but appointed by the US Government itself. My dedication and sacrifices for this country have been recognized through the numerous accolades and awards I have received, totaling more than 10 medals. Furthermore, it is important to note that my military service has resulted in a 90% disability rating according to the Department of Veterans Affairs (VA). This disability, incurred as a result of my service, has had a profound impact on my life and significantly impairs my ability to function at full capacity. Despite these challenges, I have continued to fulfill my duties at [employer] to the best of my abilities. The insinuation that my military background somehow makes me a threat to my colleagues is not only baseless but deeply offensive. It undermines the sacrifices I have made for my country and perpetuates harmful stereotypes about veterans. Such discrimination is not only unlawful under USERRA and EEO regulations but also goes against the values of fairness and equality that [employer] purports to uphold. Moreover, this incident has greatly diminished my trust and confidence in both the management and the HR Employee Relations department at [employer]. I had hoped for a workplace environment that respects and values diversity, including the unique experiences and perspectives that veterans bring to the table. However, the actions taken by [employer] have left me feeling marginalized and unfairly targeted. I am reaching out to you with the expectation that [employer] will take immediate and decisive action to rectify this situation. I request that a thorough investigation be conducted into the discriminatory treatment I have endured, and appropriate measures be taken to ensure that such incidents do not occur again in the future. I am fully committed to resolving this matter through constructive dialogue and am open to discussing potential solutions that uphold my rights as a veteran and employee of [employer]. However, I want to make it clear that I will not tolerate any further acts of discrimination or retaliation. Thank you for your attention to this matter. I trust that you will handle this issue with the seriousness and urgency it warrants. Sincerely, [Your Name] [Your Position/Department] [Contact Information].
